FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Life Systems, Inc. Now Utilizing Verimatrix Automated Leak Testing Technology

Chesterfield, MO – January 8, 2007 – To ensure that our customers are receiving the best repair service possible, Life Systems diligently researches new methods to accurately diagnose endoscope failure points and ensure quality control testing.

With that in mind, we are proud to announce that Life Systems has recently acquired a Veriscan ProV2 automated leak testing unit from Verimatrix. You will notice that all flexible videoscopes sent in for repair service will now be returned to you with a printed receipt that provides detailed information on the fluid integrity of your scope.

This technology provides a precise and repeatable process for leak testing – eliminating the potential for differences in human techniques. The Veriscan ProV2 incorporates a mandatory processing algorithm that automatically detects the presence of leaks or internal fluid within your flexible scope.

“We are continuously looking for new processes and methods to ensure that our customers’ equipment is not only repaired in a superior manner, but also protected against damage while in our possession” said Jeffrey Lay, President and CEO. “Our decision to obtain the Verimatrix unit was for our customers’ benefit and overall peace of mind.”
